1. A yellow-washed window box planted with tête-à-tête daffodils and maidenhair fern is ideal for a long feasting table. Window box, Jamali Garden. Wineglass, Macryl. Plate, Davis Studio. Flatware, Vietri.
 2. Sweetly surreal, this English Ivy topiary—dotted with gerbera and mini gerbera daisies and finished with moss—adds fantasy to the aisle. Urn, Arte Italica. Chairs, Ballard Designs.
 3. When serving lemony punch, brighten up the table with a green magnolia wreath, then surround the bowl with Aalsmeer gold, flair spray, and garden roses. Wreath, the Magnolia Company. Bowl, Global Views. Tumblers, Napa Style.
 4. For a country-fresh favor table, pair informal blooms (like viburnum and cham-omile) with a chartreuse vase. Vase, Mosser Glass. Favor box, Politesse.

●●● red orange

1. To make a monochromatic bouquet pop, add a ribbon in a contrasting or complementary color; this broad orange bow adds a playful flourish to a hand-tied bouquet of red azaleas, Rene Goscinny garden roses, straciatella roses, and ranunculus. Ribbon, Midori. 2. Guests go crazy for these bloom-topped cocktail stirrers, created by hot-gluing geraniums, Sweet William, and begonias to crimson chopsticks. Chopsticks, Pearl River. Champagne flutes, Vietri. Platter, Mosser Glass. Cake, Jan Kish La Petite Fleur. 3. The natural striping on straciatella roses mirrors the pattern on the pocket square. Pocket square, Paul Smith Accessories.

1. Bouvardia buds and pearl pins form the center of every stephanotis in this floral dome, perched prettily on a glazed terra-cotta candleholder. Candleholder, Vietri. 2. Showcase your wedding cake by surrounding it with roses, hydrangeas, lisianthus, peonies, gardenias, sweet peas, and jasmine vine. Hand-painted chocolate cappuccino cake covered in white chocolate fondant, Jan Kish La Petite Fleur. Cake stand, Juliska. 3. Achieve this Zen-like centerpiece by gluing white dendrobium orchids to manzanita branches, then covering the base with deer moss. Vase, Bahari. Table, Ikea. 4. In an update of the all-white bouquet, fiddlehead ferns, chocolate cosmos, and plucked gerbera daisies add chocolatey goodness to ivory lilacs, ranunculus, lisianthus, and gardenias. Chair, Taylor Creative. Pillow, Blissliving Home.
